1. Background and Rationale

Diaspora groups contribute to social cohesion, international knowledge transfers and investments. They play a vital role in alleviating poverty and facilitating access to education, healthcare, and housing in both their countries of origin and destination. For these reasons, Objective 19 of the GCM requires signatory states to “create conditions for migrants and diasporas to fully contribute to sustainable development in all countries.” In these uncertain times marked by global demographic, economic, and political shifts, this mission becomes increasingly crucial. Consequently, diaspora groups are evolving into strategic partners in policy-making and institutional frameworks at the communal, national, and multilateral levels — a trend highlighted in the 2024 Global Mapping by the EU Global Diaspora Facility (EUDiF). While it has been beneficial to include the diaspora in the Global Compact for Migration, their representatives have rarely been consulted regarding their views and priorities. Consequently, public diaspora policies tend to be more utilitarian than people-centred, thus failing to fully unlock potential. What is required to transform the perception and position of diaspora groups from bridge builders to strategic and institutional partners? What types of instruments and formats have proven effective since 2022? What challenges do we face? How to overcome these challenges?

2. Objectives

1. Inspire: Showcase successful transformations of diaspora groups from bridge builders into institutional partners
  2. Equip: Provide participants with actionable tools and frameworks to materialise this transformation
  3. Connect: Build a network of change-makers
  4. Advocate: Highlight policy and financing mechanisms that can support this transition

4. Methodology

The side event will present, examine and discuss instruments introduced and exchange formats established by governmental bodies for the institutionalisation of diaspora cooperation since May 2022 in Germany, Cameroon, Madagascar, and Belgium, from the point of view of diaspora leaders and of governments. The insights will be commented by IOM and BMZ. We will then engage the participants in a discussion to identify further formats worldwide, support knowledge transfers and facilitate the convergence of perspectives between diaspora groups and governments. To conclude, we will formulate policy recommendation and a call for action.

5. Expected Outcomes

1. At least 50 representatives of governments, foundations, academia and diaspora organisations exposed to concrete examples and tools for strategic diaspora cooperation.
  2. Extended collaborative network of interested stakeholders to continue discussions post IMRF.
  3. Documentation of best practices and lessons learned to be shared with global networks.
  4. Set of policy recommendations aimed at strengthening partnerships with diaspora organizations.
  5. Increased awareness and commitment among stakeholders to engage diaspora groups as strategic partners.

6. Alignment with the GCM

This side event supports the GCM Objective 19 by

- integrating migration into development planning at the local, national, regional and global levels,
  - facilitating the contributions of diaspora by establishing mechanisms at all levels, such as dedicated diaspora offices or focal points, diaspora policy advisory boards for Governments to account for the potential of diasporas in migration and development policymaking,
  - providing easily accessible information and guidance to all stakeholders of diaspora policies,
  - building partnerships to promote knowledge and skills transfer between countries of origin and countries of destination.

7. Organising Partners

Partners include development cooperation agencies (GIZ, Enabel), umbrella organisations of diaspora groups (A.D.A.G.E.), civil society organisations of the diaspora (Alefa, Mapubi) multilateral organisations (IOM, AU), governments (BMZ), research institutions (Charité University Hospital), Think & Do Tanks (Transnational Corridors) and foundations (Mercator Stiftung).

8. Conclusion

This side event offers a unique platform to identify how diaspora groups can be strategically engaged—not as temporary bridge builders but as permanent actors in inclusive, sustainable international cooperation. By equipping the stakeholders with proven tools and shared experiences, we can ensure that the social mission of diaspora groups reaches its full potential, contributing directly to the IMRF's vision of a fairer, more resilient global society.

9. Examples of tools for diaspora cooperation

The instruments presented in will include: (1) Annual Dialogue on Development Cooperation between BMZ and diaspora groups, featuring participation from the responsible minister, (2) National Diaspora Summit organized by a coalition of diaspora organizations and funded by BMZ, (3) Participation in expert exchanges organized by various divisions and thematic teams within the BMZ, such as (a) the division "Principles of Cooperation with Africa" which hosts the biannual "Discussion Group Africa", (b) the division "Policy issues of Displacement and Migration" which offers the annual "BMZ Meets Diaspora" format, (c) country divisions that hold conferences preceding bilateral governmental negotiations, (d) the thematic teams focusing on "Human Rights" and "Feminist Development Cooperation", (4) Involvement of Diaspora Experts in strategic governmental consultations, including the BMZ's Africa strategy and the Federal Government's Africa Policy guidelines, (5) Diaspora Advisory Board for the program "Shaping Development-Oriented Migration" (MEG) and other boards, (6) Recognition of Diaspora in official documents such as guidelines, strategy papers, and bilateral migration agreements. We will consider also hearings of Diaspora Experts in parliamentary committees.

10. Questions for the discussion

Diaspora Groups' Perspective: How can our expertise be monetized—for example, through grants to support research activities, commissioned studies, and operational projects? Whose knowledge / expertise is validated by whom? How can we effectively navigate our lives between two countries? What models of circular migration do we envision? What implications arise for diaspora groups when commercial and security interests shape the new political agenda? What are the roles of diaspora groups in the localisation agenda?

Government Representatives' Perspective: Who represents the diaspora groups? Can we collaborate only with initiatives that align with our agenda and bring strong networks and knowledge? Should we create specific funds, rules, and laws for diaspora actors, or should they operate within existing frameworks? How can we facilitate access for diaspora groups to funding for large-scale development cooperation projects? How can we channel diaspora funds into public institutions or institution building?
